SUBJECT: Non-Smoking Policy Study

Attached is an article which appeared in the Occupation Safety and Health Reporter, November 20, 1991 concerning a study conducted to evaluate a companies non-smoking policy. We will obtain the original publication for review.

What is interesting about the study is that the researchers found that satisfaction with the policy coincided with a worker's perception of smoke in their environment. This is an additional reason for us to encourage Gershon Meckler's technology to be more widely available to building owners and engineers.

I will send you the entire article as soon as I receive it.
